PICTURESQUE BRITISH COLUMBIA

BRITISH COLUMBIA, it is conceded by sight-seers, contains the most magnificent Mountain Scenery on the Continent. The European Alps could be lost to view among the giant mountain chairs of the Canadian Rockies and Selkirks. The traveller crossing the Continent traverses for two days and a night a succession of mighty canyons, with cloud-piercing peaks rising all about. Scarcely anywhere in the world is there such a magnificent panorama of wonderful natural features. Going West the Rockies are crossed by the Canadian Pacific Railway, by the wonderful Kicking Horse Canyon. Among the individual peaks to be seen are the Three Sisters, Mount Rundle and Sulphur Mountain, in the vicinity of Banff, Alta. Near Laggan are the delights of the Lakes in the Clouds, Paradise Valley, and the Valley of the Ten Peaks. Then from Field are reached the wonderful Yoho Valley and Takakkaw Falls, the highest Cataract in America. Then the Selkirks are crossed. Here is one of the world's largest ice fields, in the magnificent Great Glacier of the Selkirks. Sir Donald is one of the giant peaks of the Selkirks.

Leaving the Glacier, the Railway in a series of loops descends the Western slope of the Selkirks, and then traverses the wonderful Albert and Fraser Canyons. The Kootenay, Boundary and Crows Nest Countries, where are located British Columbia's most important mining industries, also abound with magnificent spectacular features. Rossland and Nelson are typical Western mining towns. These are the important towns of the Kootenay Country. Other leading towns in the Kootenay and Boundary Countries are Phoenix, Greenwood, Grand Forks, Trail, Kaslo and Sandon. In the Crows Nest are Fernie and Cranbrook. Vancouver, the chief City of British Columbia, is beautifully situated on Burrard Inlet. It is a clean and well-built city, and is steadily advancing in prosperity. Stanley Park is one of the most beautiful natural parks in America. It is a virgin forest of the mighty trees which characterize the Pacific slope. Victoria, on Vancouver Island, is the Capital of British Columbia, and is a thoroughly English City. Its magnificent Parliament Buildings, facing the Harbor shore, and erected at a cost of $1,000,000, are a most striking group. Near the Government Buildings the Canadian Pacific Railway is erecting a palatial hotel. The view from Victoria across the Straits of Juan de Fuca to the serrated snow-capped Olympic range is one of great attractiveness.

This is one of the most sublime spectacles on the Continent. An enormous volume of water, draining a vast glacier, leaps over a precipice of stupendous height into the narrow-walled gorge below.
